*Plus/Minus relates to the inherent stretch in neoprene decks. These are estimations of range of fit up or down that a given skirt size may be able to accommodate. Actual fit will be determined by a number of factors including but not limited to: size and design of rim, shape of cockpit, positioning of seat, as well as intended usage. As Confluence Watersports has no control over the majority of these factors, it is the responsibility of the individual to determine actual fit/function of any skirt on their kayak.

Proper fit of neoprene whitewater spray skirts is not an exact science. There's actually quite a bit of "grey" in the process. The four primary variables are rim size on kayak, seat positioning within the cockpit, size and design inherent of the skirt, and desires and capabilities of the paddler. The last variable is where the greatest amount of "grey" enters the equation. Fitting of a sprayskirt should take into account the abilities, experience, and size and strength of the paddler. Experienced, fit paddlers may prefer a tighter fitting skirt, one that is more difficult to put on the boat but will also better resist implosion or popping off under severe conditions. A less experienced, smaller paddler may be best served by a skirt that is not as difficult to get on the boat and will release more easily.

You'll note that the fit list lists majority of boats are fit by either our standard or large sized Langer skirts. This is true, either size of skirt will fit and function on these kayaks. In most cases the Standard rim will provide the fit desired by experienced or expert paddlers in the most demanding conditions. Standard skirts will be tougher to get on the rim but will remain in place under more demanding conditions. Conversely, the Large Rim skirts will go on easier but will also come off more easily, whether intentionally "popped" or not. As such, they will appeal to new or less experienced paddlers who are concerned about ease of escape and aren't intending to paddle more extreme waters.

There is no substitute for test fitting the skirt to the kayak with the paddler wearing the skirt and stepping into the boat. Do not test fit a skirt without the paddler who will be using it not in the boat. Also allow the paddler to install the skirt by themselves. Limit your assistance to helping them seat the edge of the skirt over the coaming behind them but let them pull the skirt over the them but let them pull the skirt over the bow of the cockpit by themselves. After all you will not be there to assist them when they're on the river. They need to be able to attach their skirt by themselves. Ease and technique of escape should also be tested during this process to ensure that the paddler can quickly pop the skirt when situation demands.
